

Martin Baxter, Executive Director, Institute of Environmental Management and Assessment, UK

Martin is Executive Director – Policy at the Institute of Environmental Management and Assessment (IEMA) a leading professional body of over 15,000 environment and sustainability professionals. Martin's current work is focussed on the development of skills and knowledge required to support the transition to a low carbon and resource efficiency economy. In addition, he leads a team providing support and advice around climate change mitigation and adaptation, resource efficiency, environmental management and environmental assessment. Martin leads the UK delegation to the International Organisation for Standardisation (ISO) on environmental management across the full suite of environmental management standards in the ISO 14000 series; he is the UK's national expert to the European Commission on the Eco-Management and Audit scheme regulation (EMAS); and chairs the United Kingdom Accreditation Service's environmental management systems advisory committee. Martin is a Fellow of IEMA, a Fellow of the RSA and a Chartered Environmentalist.