

Finn Jackson, Change Management Consultant

Finn Jackson bridges the gap between strategy and execution. He helps leaders and organisations understand quickly where they are and where they need to get to. He works with them to develop clear, workable visions and focused implementation plans. With over 20 years' experience in industry and consulting, Finn has worked for NGOs and quoted companies, in organisations ranging in size from 6 employees to 120,000. His core experience is almost a decade spent designing and implementing strategic change at all levels of a global technology company, in more than a dozen countries worldwide. His 2004 book has been called "The only top to bottom book on business" and "A blueprint for winning any game your business chooses to play." Finn has a BA in physics from Oxford University and an MBA with distinction from Imperial College. He is the founder of Transition Town Farnham.