

David Eades, Presenter, BBC World News, UK

David is a mainstream Presenter of News and Current Affairs Programmes for the BBC. He works for Radio 4 – The World Tonight, The World Today, The World This Weekend – as well as BBC News Channel and BBC World News TV.

In all, David has spent 24 years with the BBC, as a Reporter, Correspondent, News Editor and Presenter. For six years he was BBC Europe Correspondent, covering key EU issues and news stories including the death of Princess Diana, and the Balkan Conflict. He has also worked as Ireland Correspondent during the implementation of the Good Friday Peace Agreement; and as Senior Sports News Correspondent, he broke stories including bribery and financial scandals in cricket and football.

David has extensive experience as a moderator and host of conferences, and has focused in particular on issues of Sustainability (and Sport!)

He also runs a company, Allday Media, offering specialized services in film production as well as presentation training and media consultancy.