Jonathan Garrett, Director, CSR, Jaguar Land Rover, UK

Jonathan has held a number of senior corporate responsibility, sustainability and safety roles in the automotive, infrastructure, FMCG, technology and consulting sectors.

He took up his current position as CSR Director at Jaguar Land Rover in 2012, where he is responsible for the company's global CSR and sustainability strategies, energy management and environmental compliance. In 2013, the company was named BitC's Responsible Business of the Year.

Prior to joining JLR, he spent four years at Balfour Beatty, the infrastructure group, as Head of Sustainability, crafting and deploying its 2020 sustainability vision and roadmap.

Jonathan was previously Health, Safety and Environment Director at RHM, then the UK's largest food producer, where he led a major restructuring of the central HS&E function before its merger with Premier Foods in early 2007. Before entering the food industry, Jonathan spent seven years as Environment, Health and Safety Director at Smiths Group, the global engineering and Technology Company. He began his career with 10 years as an environmental consultant.
